

SB 608
RIGHT TO REST ACT OF 2015
SENATOR CAROL LIU, 25TH DISTRICT
Introduced February 27, 2015

THE PROBLEM

---

California has no unified state law defining standard protections for basic civil and human rights guaranteeing that a most basic human necessity, resting, is protected for all residents, regardless of their housing status.

BACKGROUND

---

Throughout history, municipalities have used discriminatory laws to keep people designated as “undesirable” out of public spaces and the public consciousness. With poverty and homelessness reaching record numbers in California, there has been a documented surge of such laws, targeting people without homes but also impacting people who are poor. These laws have also been used to criminalize acts of civil disobedience at a moment in history when such actions have been necessary to raise awareness about economic inequalities and the structural racism in our criminal justice system.

Just like the discriminatory laws from the past, these laws deny people their right to merely exist in public. According to surveys of people who are homeless conducted by the Western Region Advocacy Project, the predominant “illegal offenses” that they have been charged with include sleeping, resting and sharing food. These surveys also revealed that the majority of people without homes do not know of a safe place to sleep at night where they would not be arrested.

Researchers from the Policy Advocacy Clinic at the University of California at Berkeley Law School analyzed the prevalence of these types of municipal codes restricting rest and sharing of food in 58 California cities for its report “California’s New Vagrancy Laws: The Growing Enactment and Enforcement of Anti-Homeless Laws in the Golden State.” Researchers identified over 500 municipal laws criminalizing standing, sitting, resting, sleeping and sharing of food in public places as well as laws making it illegal to ask for money, nearly nine laws per city, on average. The study also found that the number of ordinances targeting those behaviors rose along with the rise in homelessness following the sharp decline of federal funding for affordable housing was cut in the early 1980s and again with the Great Recession in 2008.

Since 2000, statewide arrests for vagrancy offenses increased by 77 percent, the study showed. San Francisco alone issued over 3,000 citations per year from 2007 to 2013 for violations of codes outlawing sleeping, standing, sitting, resting and begging in public. In Sacramento, citations for violating an anti-camping code within city limits rose from fewer than 50 in 2010 to nearly 1,200 in 2012, the study said.

SOLUTION

---

SB 608 seeks to end the criminalization of the non-criminal activities by protecting freedom of movement, sitting, standing, lying and sleeping and clarifying that people shall have the right to share food and practice religion in public in California.

SUPPORT

---

East Bay Community Law Center (Co-Sponsor)
JERICHO: A Voice for Justice (Co-Sponsor)
Western Center on Law and Poverty (Co-Sponsor)
Western Regional Advocacy Project (Co-Sponsor)
ACLU of California
Affordable Homeless Housing Alternatives
Alliance of White Antiracists Everywhere-LA (AWARE-LA)

Berkeley Needle Exchange Emergency Distribution
California Church IMACT
California Partnership
Californians United for a Responsible Budget
Caduceus Justice
Clarion Alley Mural Project
City Paws LA
Coalition of California Welfare Rights Organizations
Corporation for Supportive Housing
Downtown Women’s Action Coalition
Elica Health Centers
Esperanza Community Housing Corporation
Fair Chance Project
Food Not Bombs
General Assistance Advocacy Project
Girls Think Tank
Grey Panthers of San Francisco
Homeless Action Center
Homeless Lives Matter- Berkeley
Hospitality House
Homeless Health Care LA
Housing California
Housing Works California
Hunger Action LA
Institute of Popular Education of Southern California
Issues and Solutions
JWCH Institute
Labor Community Strategy Center
Larkin Street Youth Services
LA for Choice
LA Catholic Worker
LA Community Action Coalition (LACAN)
LA Human Right to Housing Collective
Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights of the San Francisco Bay Area
Lavender Youth Recreation and Information Center
Loaves & Fishes
Los Angeles Poverty Departments
Mutual Housing California
National Association for the Education of Homeless Children and Youth
National Coalition for the Homeless
National Law Center on Homelessness & Poverty
Occupy Venice

Occupy Orange County
Peace and Freedom Party of California
People Organized for Westside Renewal (POWER)
Prison Activist Resource Center
Safe Ground Sacramento
Sacramento Food Not Bombs
Sacramento Homeless Organizing Committee
Sacramento Housing Alliance
Sacramento Regional Coalition to End Homelessness
San Francisco Coalition on Homelessness
San Francisco Living Wage Coalition
Southern California Association of Non Profit Housing
Spirit of Venice
St. Anthony Foundation
St. James Infirmary
St. Mary’s Center
Strategic Actions for a Just Economy
Suitcase Clinic
The Gubbio Project
TRUST South LA
United Coalition East Prevention Project
Venice Community Housing Corporation
Venice Justice Committee
Wind Youth Services
Women Organizing Resources, Knowledge & Services (WORKS)
65 individual letters

OPPOSITION

---

California Parks & Recreation Society
California Police Chiefs Association
CalSmallBiz
Central City Association of Los Angeles
Gateway to L.A. Business Improvement District
League of California Cities
Small Business California
Taxpayers for Improving Public Safety